Inside the Design Process

Senior Living SMART Graphic Designer Ginger Goetz says:

My creative process usually begins when I have received the copy from the client. At that point I read through it, ask any pertinent questions I may have of the Creative Services Manager (CSM) or client, and then begin to conceptualize the project on paper. From there I begin to craft the first piece on the computer by using programs in the Adobe suite. If there are multiple pieces I make sure that I carry through certain elements in all of them – type treatment, images, whatever seems to help make the pieces pop and convey a happy, positive feeling.

The creating is the part I enjoy the most – it's very satisfying to send a draft to the client and have them like what I have produced.”

As a 32-year veteran of the graphic arts field, I have worked with thousands of clients from all walks of life. I believe that taking the time and effort to get to know your client is the cornerstone to building a long-term, successful relationship.

Working with this Multi-State Senior Living Company has been a great experience as a designer. Their marketing team understands what is needed to make a project successful and provides our CSM all the pertinent information from the start. They are open to new ideas and are very receptive to my interpretation of the content. Their color palette is bold and fun and their fonts allow for creative typography – which can make all the difference when competing for your audience's attention.”

...We Appreciate You!

““The Senior Living SMART team is an invaluable resource for all aspects of senior living marketing. With their implementation of marketing automation via HubSpot, they have transformed our lead qualification process, leading to a significant improvement in the quality of our leads. Moreover, their expertise in creating engaging content, including blogs, resource guides, and more, has not only helped our search engine optimization but also boosted our organic search results.””
